We cannot but feel grieved at the loss of the brave ship, which was almost as much English as Confederate, in whose defense we may recognize the buil dog courage of our countrymen as well as the chivarious impetuosity of her Southern commander. The news of this combat will we fear, carry mourning into more than one English hone. But in the end of the gallant ship, which was English too, there is, after all, little to regret, much of which to be proud. She sank unconquered and defiant, in the waters of the channel, reginsing to the last to lower her fag, leaving no trophy in the hands of the enemy.—(From the London Herald.)

CONDITION OF THE RAILHOAD.

Nothing absolutely certain is yot known in relation to what amount of damage the Confederates have indicated on the Beitmore and Ohlo Railroad. The worst may be feared, however, as they have been in uninterrupted possession of a distance of more than sixty miles of the truck for four or fige days. Fifty miles of the truck have been destroyed. ty miles of the track have been destroyed.
THE COSTEDERATES STILL RECKIVEN REINFORCEMENTS.

As I close this letter I learn that the latest indications are that large bodies of confederate troops are still moving up the Shenndosh Valley, and that the probability is that during the next twenty-hour hours a large portion of General Lee's army, recently at a Petersourg, will be between Gordonsville and Winchester, moving north. There is nothing improbable in this. The twenty-tour days that General Lee abundant time and opportunity to transfer fifty thousand troops from Richmond to Gordonsville in a very quiet way, and those of his troops now in Maysland may be only the advance of his whole army.

It is currently reported here that there is only one corps of Lee's army now left at Petersburg, and that all the rest are on route for the North. It is also reported that Warren's corps of Grant's army is as route for Washington.

The serious question now is, therefore, The serious question now is, therefore, whether it shall be permitted to leave Maryland with its rainable booty and rejoin Lee's army, or whether we have the means, promptness, and generalship to surround and cut to pleces this bost of freebooters, and recapture their plunder. The War Department ought to be sincerely thankful to Lee for thus dividing his army, as it ought to be made the cause of such a victory over the rebels either in Haryland or before Richmond, as the perflous nature of the rebel strategy invites and deserves. If we cannot take advantage of such a division of their sray, to crush its fragments, we could hardly succeedagainst its united strength.

ARBY LOSSES.

One of the things concerning which it is difficult to get accurate information, in army matters, is in regard to the losses of the respective armies. Different parties assert the most contradictory statements, and the public have no means of knowing which are true. In regard to all matters of fact, the judgments of men differ endiessly. Two men will see the same identical facts, and report concerning them wide as the moon apart. As fo the official reports, they are seldom made public, at least, until long afterwards; and there is a well founded distrust of such reports in the matter of numbers. Napoleod and there is a well founded distrust of such reports in the matter of numbers. Najoleon is said to have been accustomed to report his own losses at about one-third of their actual number, while he was exercit to gaess large enough sit o those of his sensy. When a report comes from the army of the losses in a battle, it can seldom be other than a mere estimate; and in regard to the enemy, it can often be little more than mere guess work. There is consequently the fullest, opportunity for the imagination, and some man's fances are very active.

for the imagination, and some man's fancies are very active.

Since this campaign commenced we have had all sorts of reports of the losses of our armies. Six weeks ago it was given out that General Sherman, then near Ressea, had sent to the rear 16,000 wounded men. Such a statement struck all observers with surprise, and even with dismay; for if it was true, his army was melting away at a rate which

Hon. James Brooks, editor of the New York Express, is one of the most altra opponents of the Administration, and a Copperhead of the first water. In a recent letter from Washington to his paper, he says:

Slavery carnes with it its own punishment. It is a dead dang to the body pointice. It is impossible for any community to prosper with it on its bosom. The affliction bears as heavily on the master as the community of prosper with it on its bosom. The affliction bears as heavily on the master as the community of property, it keeps the master in the rear of others in a like rituation exempt from the evil, and thus deprives him where it depresses his servant. It is demonstrable, in my opinion, that that community of whites, taken as a whole, must be happer, more prosperous and ricare, hours, the copperhead leaders refuse to fight for the Union, unless the preservation and perpetuity of slavery be guaranteed by the Government.

The Cass County Republican indulges in an attack, designed to be fierce upon the CHICAGO TRIBUNE, for our strictures upon the vote of Mr. Upson, of the Coldwater district, of Mr. Upoon, of the Coldwater district, Mich., against the repeal of the $300 clause. The Case County Republican is "A little pot, Soon hot," and burns with a good deal more heat than light. We gather, however, from its somewhat muddy statement, that Mr. Upoon voted against the repeal in the House Bill because it stobd coupled with objectionable clauses, and that on the final passage of the Senate bill repealing the clause, he yoted in its favor. We are glad to hear it. The record of the Republicans of the Western States is,

The Democratic party have been too long accustomed to the administration of the Government not to be thoroughly educated as to the day of the people towards their country in time of possed as well as in time of war. They know that no man can consent to a dissolution of the Union, a recognition of the independence of the Confederacy, and general dismemberment of the nation without being spillty of Bresson and perfidy: they know that it is the duty of all first not uphold the nation by every possible means, and the threats of malcontents, and designing men whose bearts are with the rebellion and its success will not prevent them from declaring what that duty is, and their purpose to pursue it to the letter.

Six: I have the honor to inform you that, in accordance with my intention, as previously announced to you. I steamed out of the harbor of Cherbourg between 9 and 10 o'clock on the morning of June 39, for the purpose of engaging the conent's steamer Kearsarge, which had been lying off and on the port for several days previously. After clearing the harbor we descried the enemy with his head off shore, at, a distance of about nine miles. We were three-quarters of an hour in coming up with him. I had previously pivoted my guns to starboard, and made all my preparations for engaging the enemy on that side. When within about a mile and a quarticle of the control of the starboard, and made all my preparations for engaging the enemy on that side. When within about a mile and a quargood shell range we opened upon him with shell. Some ten or fiftren minutes after the commencement of the action our spanker gaff was shot away and our ensign came down by the run. This was immediately replaced by another at the missonmasthead. The firing now became very hot, and the enemy's shot and shell soon began to tell upon our built, knocking down, kulling and disabling a number of men in different parts of the ship. Ferceiving that our shell, though apparently exploiding against the enemy's elica, were doing but little damage, I returned to solid shot firing, and from this time afterward alternated with shot and shell.

After the lapse of about an hour and ten minutes our ship was accratined to be in sinking consistion, the enemy's shell having exploided in our sides and between decks, opening large apertures, through which the water rushed with great rapidity.

For some few minutes a lad hopes of being able to reach the Frenchecoss, for which purpose I gave the ship all steam, and set such of the fore and aft salls as were available. The ship filled so rapidly, however, that before we had made much progress, the fire were extinguished, in the furnaces, and we were evidently on the point of sinking. My officers and men behaved steadily and galiantly, and though they have lost their ship they have not lost honor.

Where all behaved so well it would be invidious to particularize; but I cannot deny myself the plessure of saying that Mr. Kell, my first lieuterant, deserves great credit for the fine condition in which the ship went late action, with regard of her battery, magazine and shel rooms; also that he rendered me great assistance by his coolness and judgment as the fight proceeded.

The enemy was beavier than myself both in ship, battery and crew, but it did not know, until the action was over, that she was also fron-clad.

Our total loss in killed and wounded is 30 to wit; 9 killed and 21 wounded. have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant. (Signed)

Wilmer & Braith's European Tieses of the Sth nillino says that on the day of the publication in Loudon of Capt. Semmes' report a counter-statement from a Federal gentleman to an official position in Liverpool declared emphatically that the Alabama, instead of being inferior to the Kearsarge was actually twenty-five tons larger—that the number of hands was the same, the weight of metal the same, and he complationally branded the "chain armor" statement as nonsecuse. He adds that the Kearsarge had no one killed, no officer touched, and only three men slightly wounded.

The Cotton Supply.

We have read with much interest a long article in the New York Commercial Advertiser concerning the price and supply of cotton. The writer case figures to prove that there has been of late a constantly diminishing decrease in the supply of the raw material, and assumes that the therease in price has been due to this fact and the enhanced value of gold. He is of the Offsice that he nvention met in the church at 9 o'clock Every county was fully represented, motion of John C. The importance of the pending contest for the Presidency cannot be exaggerated. It is not too much to say that the free of the Union and of Constitutional Ilberty on this continent hungs upon its decision. As the value of political documents is vasily enhanced by their distribution in an early period of the campaign, it is note carness by hopes that every county and township in the toyal States will be supplied without one day a unnecessary delay.

Very respect with the nones of the campaign, it is not carness by hopes that every county and township in the toyal States will be supplied without one day a unnecessary delay.

We have within the past few weeks heard doleiul accounts in regard to the injury which the growing crops have snatained by reason of the drouth which has prevailed in various parts of our State this season, and we have taken some pains to learn the extent of the injury done to crops, both by consulting exchanges as well as conversing with intelligent farmers from different sections. The conclusion at which we arrive, from the best means in our power to judge, is that the yield of wheat in most counties of the State will be fully an average crop, in some, perhaps, a trife under, while in the valley of the Minnesota, and counties adjacent thereto, the yield will be better than lastyear. Upon the whole, we think there is no cause for alarm, and Minnesota will continue to take the lead as a wheat growing State.—

Highting Discrees, 6th.

Raize.—On Monday and Tuesday mornings the farming part of our county was made glad by several good showers of ruln, which seems to have wet the ground more than any we have had for some time. This puts a bright face on the prospects of our crops which began to suffer severely. We may look it an ordinary yield of wheat, outs, corn and barley.—Haulato Union.

Chors.—From most of our exchanges we hear no complaint at the prospects of short crops. In our own county we think the prospect is fair. We have made extensive inquiries of the farmers in this county, and the general report is, that while the drouth has so iar affected the wheat that the straw will be very light, there is no reason to believe that the grain has been affected.—Followites.

RAIN.—A timely and welcome shower of rain fell on Saturday morning, continuing

City Bepublican lately visited a wheat field in Johnson county, which had been destroyed by this mischievous insect. He says:

On going into the road by the side of it was the burse leaving for some other field of we ble. They traveled rapidly, would make a good distance in a day. There was a stream of water across their course, for, although they did not swim, they entered the water and ficiated down the stream until they were rodged on points of the opposite side, when they crawled out and pursued their way. The largest of them were about the size of a small house fty. They had wings and looked fully prepared for flaght. The next size had also wings, but were only about half as large. The smallest and anost numerous class was a little red bug about as large as the head of a plo, but very active, and in their countiess numbers could destroy a field of wheat in a few days. They work by fastening on the stalk and sucking the sap from it. They are so numerous they will caver every stalk in the field all over, and in there days time a field of wheat which county the stalk in the stalk and sucking the sap from it. They are so full of the appearance of being dead ripe. It is just as hard on barley, and will go from wheat or barley into corn, ze or onts. The crop of spring wheat in this county this year is likely to be anutter failure. We chast look to something else for bread.

Whather AND Caors.—Vegetation of, all kinds, stimulated by the late copious refus, is puttling forth with a vigor that—will go far towards making up for loot time. Oats, Instead of being a total failure, will probably average half a crop. Corn and potatoes promise an average yield. Winter wheat will generally turn out well, but little can be expected from epring wheat, as the bugs threaten to devour all that escaped the drought. With a continuance of favorable weather, the hey crop may turn out fair.—

THE WHEAT CROP.—As the time nears when what is left of the wheat crop now on the ground will be gathered, it becomes more and more apparent that in this vicinity the yield will be very light. As a closing arrangement we hear much complaint of the ravages of the yellow midge. In nome fields they are very destructive, while in others nearly one half ofshe heads are filled with "smut." The great extent of country over which this grain is now grown precludes the idea of an entire failure; but the crop in many places will be short.—Sanducty Regis. 107, 7th.

The rebels about four o'clock were to be seen from the roofs of the houses of the city coming down the Hagerstown road, and also the Hayper's Ferry, or Jefferson road, apparently in strong force. Captain Alexander's guns immediately fired upon the foe, and checked them momentarily by the excellence and the chosen mountains. Their position was a spiendid one, and their men well protected.

The fight—for it was not a battle—commenced at half-past four o'clock, with an artillery duel between one of our guns in Zimmorrman's field and the rebel gruss on Hagan's Hill. Our gun was commanded by Lieut. Perkins, of Alexander's battery, and was handled in the most effective manner, dismounting one of the rebel gruss.

The skirmishers advanced and the sharp crack of the musket was heard for about two hours with seemingly no result, when a company of the 3d Maryland made a charge upon a force of rebels concealed behind a stone fence in Rizer's field, lying on the Harper's Ferry road on the North side, and succeeded in dislodging them. They held the position bravely for the remainder of the fight. The ten companies of Col. Maulsby's regignent supported the gun at the head of Patrick atreet. The other guns were without any support, as every available man was necessary to meet the foe in the skirmish line. The Stil Illinois cavalry dismounted and rendered very effective service with their carbines.
